Public invited to county tax cap forum

By Paul Mackie
Staff writer

Voters will have a last chance to educate themselves about "tax caps" when the Madison County Board sponsors a forum tonight.

Although public turnout at previous forums has been slim, officials hope the proposal on Tuesday's ballot will create interest.

The forum will provide voters with information before the April 13th election on how the Property Tax Exemption Limitation Law will work and what effect it would have on their property tax bills," said Rudy Papa, chairman of the County Board.

The forum will begin at 7 p.m. in the County Board Room at the Administration Building, 157 N. Main St., in Edwardsville.

Jackie Monroe of the Alton Taxpayers Association and County Board members Steve Sizemore and Jim Wayne Bridgewater-D-Roxana, will speak in favor of tax caps.

Others, such as Harry Braxas, regional superintendent of schools and members of the League of Women Voters from the Edwardsville area, may speak against PTELL, which commonly is referred to as "tax caps."

"This is a very important issue that will have a large impact on both taxpayers and local government entities," Papa said. "We want to provide an opportunity for voters with views on both sides of the issue to express their opinions."

County Administrator James Monday recently supplied a packet of information about tax caps compiled by the Taxpayers Federation of Illinois. Some basic facts include:

PTELL is a legal option property-tax limitation intended to limit increases in total taxes billed for non-home rule taxing districts.

PTELL would limit each tax district's aggregate tax receipts to an annual 5 percent increase or the cost-of-living increase, whichever is less. It also would freeze each district's non-referendum bonding authority to the level in place at the time PTELL began in 1997, if it is approved.

A total of 136 taxing districts within Madison County would be covered by PTELL, which would not be affected.

Of the 136 districts that would be affected, it is estimated that the amount levied in 1998 in those districts would have been about 1.8 percent.

Heather Usrey, a student at Coolidge Middle School, will be among 100 Illinois students competing April 9.

Payroll dispute continues

Haine to offer opinion soon

By Paul Mackie
Staff writer

Democratic officials held their ground this week in a dispute over where county employee payroll checks should be stored.

Madison County Clerk

Mark

Von Nide

said that

Treasurer Fred Bathon, by asking that the checks be stored at his office, is simply adding to his "history of bureaucratic aggression."

"It's in his history as (the county's) treasurer and auditor," said Bathon. "His office has distributed the checks for at least 50 years." He has continually tried to expand his role.

Madison County State's Attorney William R. Haine said Monday he will probably be ready to offer his interpretation of the law soon.

The disagreement heated up last Thursday when Bathon refused, for about six hours, to pay $247,890 worth of claims checks.

Bathon and Von Nide discussed the matter heatedly with County Board Chairman

Madison officials approve formal agreement on boundary

Allows focus on economic development

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

A formal agreement that would end boundary disputes between the city of Madison, village of Fairmont City and the St. Clair County's Attorney's Office was approved by Madison Tuesday.

The agreement was expected to be approved by Fairmont City Wednesday and would then be submitted to the courts to dismiss a lawsuit over Madison annexations filed by the state's attorney's office.

After approving the agreement last week, but Madison Mayor John Hamm said he and Fairmont City Mayor Alex Bregen agreed to do it in ordinance form this week.

"It was a long time coming to get this done," Hamm said.

The agreement will allow both communities to concentrate on economic development in their areas, Hamm said.

Because of the proposed new Mississippi River Bridge, redevelopment of the St. Louis National Guard armory, the relocation of Illinois is a great deal of development is expected to occur in the area, although it may take several years for anything to happen.

According to the agreement, the boundaries near the Milam Landfill will be squared off along Interstate

Council approves tax break

Old fitness center could become office building

By Mike Heil
Staff writer

The old fitness center at 3001 St. Louis Ave. could become a modern office building if the Granite City School District approves a tax break for a group of developers.

The Granite City Council

unanimously approved the tax break at its Tuesday night meeting.

"I kind of feel this is the least amount of something any developer asked for in the last two years," said Alderman Kim MacFaugust.

Granite City Director of Economic Development Dan Brown elaborated somewhat on the tax break by saying that the city could freeze taxes, but can rebate the increment generated by the building."

The brick two-story building consists of 28,000 square feet, featured by a spacious parking lot to be built.

Drainage problems, which are numerous where the property is located, would not jeopardize the building or the building lot because the city would share a holding pond in the vicinity with the building's developer.

Eric Evans and Ronald Roth, both attorneys, along with Dave Jones, would like to remodel the old building for office space.

The Roth Firm, of which both attorneys are affiliated, would use some of the building for its law practice and rent the rest for office space.

As far as tax revenue, the developers said $6,000 would go to the city until 2003.

Currently, the city is receiving about $1,000 in tax revenue.

After 2003, the developers said, the city would receive about $40,000 in tax revenue.

Susan Frey was sick of battling the telephone lines to send an e-mail or to look up information on the Internet. ## Here's some reaction to Heston's remarks

(EDITOR'S NOTE: The Suburban Journals recently published the entire text of a speech actor and National Rifle Association vice president Charlton Heston made at Yale University. The text of the speech drew sharp reaction from the public. In today's Granite City Press-Record, we are printing much of the reaction to Heston's remarks.

To the editor:
I read Charlton Heston's article in last week's Journal and agreed 100 percent with everything he stated. He put into words my exact feelings. Many, many people feel this way but don't know how to express it.

"Political correctness" has reached the level of absurdity and the dumbing-down of our schools, etc. is quite frightening.

An article in the newspaper a few months ago reported on the story of a young girl confined to a wheelchair suing her school because she wanted to be on the "cheerleading squad" and was denied since it was physically impossible for her to perform any of the cheers. She sued the school for "discrimination" and won! How very, very pathetic.

Sandra L. Crowley
Via e-mail

To the editor:
I applaud Mr. Heston for taking a stand for morality and "doing the right thing." I also applaud the Suburban Journals for printing his speech in its entirety. It's about time America heard what the hell was going on behind their masks of "political correctness" and exercising their freedom of speech. Mr. Heston's remarks are the best I've read since my study of the Gettysburg address. Thank goodness for Charlton Heston and thank goodness for the Suburban Journals ... who says St. Louis is a "one newspaper town?"

Mike Strawhun
Via e-mail

To the editor:
Preach on Brother Heston!!

Terry Ely
Via e-mail

To the editor:
Charlton Heston's speech is right on. It is so refreshing to hear someone speak up for freedom with responsibility and not freedom to be outrageous. It is natural for us to want to set the limits, but it is the responsibility of adults to set the limits. Profanity and obscenity, whether it be in the movies or records or other, should not be tolerated by decent people. It is not necessarily being mean in a short run to the person who is willing to speak out, but think God there are people who can see the consequences of not speaking out. This nation needs very badly to return to decency.

Norman Karl
St. Louis
Via e-mail

To the editor:
I think that everyone who follows current events has read an article or heard news stories centered on "What is the world coming to?" The atrocities being committed in today's society are the collateral damage of the "culture war." Call it moral relativism, political correctness or whatever the popular term happens to be, the line between right and wrong has been blurred. As long as society tolerates behavior that is not in the best interest of everyone and relies on so-called experts to tell our guilt, we as a society will degenerate to the lowest common denominator.

Charlton Heston is calling for a return to common sense. As a parent attempting to raise good and decent children, I applaud him.

David M. Donaldson
House Springs

To the editor:
Thank you for printing Charlton Heston's speech. It is very timely and was much needed. I read every word twice.

Donald K. Joering
St. Charles

More reaction to Charlton Heston's remarks

To the editor:
Charlton Heston raised substantive issues in his Harvard speech. We should have recognized the serious substance at which we had arrived when some of us first began using the term "McCarthyism." Some of us learned "Eenie meenie minie mo, catch a niggard by the toe" when we were children. The crux of that saying was that you are a miser by making him pay money. That saying ranked popularly high, as did some of Aesop's fables. It is a part of American culture.

Several years back, Ben Edwards of A.G. Edwards Co. was criticized for using the term "plumbers" in the fact that vanilla is a flavor coming from a black bean and not a color meant nothing to those causing an uproar.

Heston promotes a good, sound and excellent education when the well-educated must subordinate their knowledge to the illiterates among us?

Heston also argued that no one goes in their freedoms or freedom of speech when others are repressed in theirs.

Helen Louise Herndon
South St. Louis
Via e-mail

To the editor:
Enthusiastic commendations on printing the entire text of the speech. I am a fan of the Cultural War by our great statesman, Charlton Heston.

We hope all teachers the greater Jefferson County area will be exposed to the attention of their students and encourage diligent discussion of the contents. We salute Heston's great devotion to our country, and to the Journal for bringing this great oration to the public.

M.W. Selsor (Capt. USAF, Ret'd) & Lucy Selsor
Jefferson County

To the editor:
First, I want to thank you for printing Heston's speech in its entirety. My husband and I enjoyed every word. He is right on!

It's encouraging to learn there are still a few great men left in this country, which he certainly is one.

We are appalled to learn that ignorance was rewarded in the case where the well-known Howard was used properly. For David Howard to be forced to apologize and to re-enact his embarras-ment while black rage. When we cave in to such unfairness, it is this cowardly behavior?

We should all work to stop the cultural decay.

Opal Henrich
Via e-mail

To the editor:
After many "on target" speeches, it is necessary to invoke Dr. Martin Luther King seems contradictory.

Better to have the conviction with or without anyone's approval. Otherwise, right on, Charlton!

Charlie Craft
Columbia, Ill.

To the editor:
The Great Miscommunicator, Charlton Heston, has spoken again. And, like Moses, his sheep hang on every word. But what value do those words have?

In his speech to the Harvard Law School Forum, Heston proves he has learned well from Rush Limbaugh and other arch-conservatives who are savvy in using the media to promote their agenda. Heston references events with no purpose for their existence, quotes out of context and attempts to shock his audience into submission as he shocked the group of top business executives to whom he refers. His attack on Limbaugh is further revealed in his quote from Limbaugh Lackey Tony Snow. From what I see Heston who insists we apologize for his own ignorance, his demagoguery, his far-from-secret, reactionary agenda.

In plain language, Heston is a hypocrite. He has indeed played great men, yet he continues to attack those prophets, generals and (God forbid) artists. He was playing roles, yet he insists Ice T is not playing a role in his song of "Ice" and Limbaugh and other artists have no room in our society but the one Heston is dedicated to "saving."

Heston's knowledge of academics is also severely lacking. Quality educational institutions do not "tell us what to think" or "what to say," but teach us to effectively express our own ideas and support those ideas with solid evidence, not hearsay or empty rhetoric.

"Political Correctness" began in academia as a way to ensure inclusion in front of any potentially controversial minutiae that would detract from the ideas being expressed. It was never intended to rule over the world of the academic journal, but it did so, thanks to arch-conservative demagogues seeking a means to label academics as McCarthy-era "liberals" (read "communists"), or perhaps to gain revenge on an English teacher who failed their poorly written and unsupported essays.

Heston's "McCarthyism" is a sham, a shock tactic designed to conceal the true McCarthyism in history. It is the Right's efforts to "Take Back America." I've been a college professor, Chuck. I was afraid to speak my beliefs in a right-wing atmosphere that makes me feel small and void in the face of "Family, God and Patriotism."

The majority of Americans know they have the options to change the station if they refuse to buy material they find offensive. Religious zealots who would boycott companies that produce items they find offensive have no problem with placing religious symbols under the windshield wipers of my car, in my mailbox and on the airwaves.

You can't call a situation a "War" when only one side is doing the fighting. It's time for upstanding, tax-paying Americans who appreciate the arts and music in their pursuit to begin fighting back against a movement that would reduce our country to a place in which disagreement won't be tolerated, dissent of any kind will be seen as "offensive" and culture must be "family-friendly" or be censored. That's not America, but it will be if we let it make our voices heard against the angry, paranoid minority that sees more political gains by the day.

the National Geographic Society. If they score high enough, they get to compete on the state level.

This is Heather's second year as Coolidge's champion and her first time to compete at the state level.

"I'm really nervous and nervous all at the same time," Heather said. "I want to win for the school so I can have all my teachers be proud of me."

However, she said there is one problem with winning: "I'm kind of scared of heights; I don't want to fly," Edwards said. "Geography is a very important subject," but one that many may only take once.

"With world events the way they are today, kids need to know about geography," he said.

Next year, social studies teachers plan a "Jeopardy!"-style competition for seventh-grade students.

"We do the traditional things, but try to put games and crossword puzzles and different activities," Edwards said.

The state Geography Bee qualifying round will be held at 9:45 a.m. Friday at Illinois State University in Normal. Each winner at the state level will receive $100 and other prizes, along with an all-expense-paid trip to Washington with a teacher escort for the May 25-26 national finals, hosted by Alex Trebek and televised by The Discovery Channel.

At the national level, prizes include $50,000 in scholarships, $25,000 for first place, $15,000 for second and $10,000 for third — and a seven-day trip to Sydney, Australia, the site of the 2000 Olympic Games, for the national champion.

"Every year it's great to see so many bright, knowledgeable kids taking part in the Bee," said National Geographic Society Chairman Gilbert M. Grosvenor.

The Geography Bee is one of a number of efforts the Society has made to improve geographic education.

"Everyone has suffered a great deal from the methods of teaching that were used when I was in school," Grosvenor said.

Council addresses sewer problems

15 main failures causing major problems for city residents

By Mike Hell
Staff writer

The failure of a sewer main in the city, coupled with additional costs of a sewer main that failed three years ago but was recently repaired, are two related issues addressed Tuesday night by the Granite City Council.

City Engineer Joe Juneau was notified March 31 that 15 sewer mainshad failed, causing sewage problems for a large residential area in north Granite City. The sewer main that failed is part of a site operated by Illinois-American Water Co.

Juneau said the sewer main break could have occurred from an aging pipe or constant soil pressure. Because of the break, the city installed a temporary line around the damaged pipe.

The repair of the main, Juneau said, is not eligible for reimbursement by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA). Therefore, he recommended that the damaged site be placed on emergency status and a construction cost of $40,000 be weighted by the council to repair the break.

The repair cost, he said, could be paid by the city's general fund or the capital improvement fund.

In regard to another sewer main failure, which occurred in 1996 at 3221 Newell, Juneau recommended that $5,918.14 be approved to Instiuniform Technologies, which returned to the site twice to clean and repair the main.

Fifth Ward Alderman Craig Tarpoff agreed that the money should be paid to Instiuniform, but asked the council to pass a motion (which it did) authorizing to see if there was indeed any legal means by which the city could reclaim costs from Jones Services if it was indeed responsible for the main break.

City Attorney Dan Jensen said he would look into the matter.

According to a media release presented by Juneau at the meeting, during the initial cleansing and televising of the main, Instiuniform Technologies found a lateral (added pipe) protruding through the sewer main that could not be removed or cut.

Jones Services installed a lateral for a homeowner in the area. Consequently, the street department asked Jones Services to remove it, which it did.

Instiuniform Technologies had to return to clean and televise the main, but while undergoing the process, found a break in the area where it was repaired.

The main was repaired by a contractor, but Instiuniform Technologies had to return a second time to finish the project.

Democrat officials stand firm in payroll dispute

Rudy Papa, who was summoned to the meeting despite being on vacation.

"It erupted into a feud and a disruption because Fred refused to pay the bills," said Von Nida, D-Granite City.

"I probably should have just signed them and discussed it after the fact," added Bathon, D-Pontoon Beach. "But government was not disrupted. The checks were issued on Thursday and they went out on Thursday."

Bathon said he wants to "feel comfortable that the checks are safeguarded" and said most Illinois counties store their checks in treasurers' offices.

He said department heads could sign off when checks are distributed, and his office would then be able to keep a record of checks leaving his office and also returning from the bank.

Now, the checks, which are also used for County Board-approved items such as mileage reimbursements, office supplies, legal expenses and workman's compensation, are only reviewed by the treasurer's office when they return from the bank.

"It seems logical, statutorily, that I have a responsibility to secure the checks prior to them being distributed," Bathon said. "I don't agree that the County Clerk should have a role in this process. It has nothing to do with (Von Nida)."

Meanwhile, Von Nida said Bathon's "logic for preventing fraud" doesn't make sense. He said the clerk's office distributes the blank checks and that Bathon's office checks the records after the checks are cashed at the bank, thus creating a system of checks and balances.

"What happens if there's a crooked treasurer or employee in the treasurer's office who signs a (blank) check?" Von Nida said. "How does the County Clerk know the check is stolen?"

Although the checks feature Von Nida and Bathon's signatures, the signatures are actually printed in the county's Information Systems Department.

Von Nida said that Bathon, as former auditor, attempted to take over payroll duties from former County Clerk

Evelyn Bowles, whom Bathon allegedly claimed was doing a poor job. The County Board eventually voted overwhelmingly to leave the job up to Bowles.

"Same story, different day," Von Nida said. "He's trying to make himself seem more grand."

The dispute dates back to a meeting in November between Bathon and Von Nida. The two discussed how to handle automating the checks in order to reduce the workload in the treasurer's office.

At that time, Bathon successfully lobbied to get his name listed at the top of the checks. Previously, the checks had featured a generic heading: "County Clerk's Office and Treasurer of Madison County."

Von Nida said he now regrets allowing a stamp of Bathon's name to be placed on the checks because Bathon is now using that as a prime reason the checks should be stored in his office.

"The guy bullied me in November," Von Nida said. "I'm not proud of it, but he did it. Now he's bullying me again. I've got to draw the line (by keeping the checks in my office.)"

Von Nida ended up sending out about 180 payroll and regular expense checks on the old forms, without the "Bathon" heading. Bathon realized this last Thursday morning when they were sent to his office to be signed.

"I talked to him (the day before)," Bathon said. "He was very unhappy and said the new checks weren't going to fly because he didn't like them. I got up and walked out."

Both agree the issue is being encouraged by the recent division of Democratic county officials, which began in November when Bathon criticized Papa's appointment of former board member Jack Frandsen to the position of county auditor.

Cable provides Web access

technology after an introduction by Charter WorldGate and community officials.

Charter recently spent $15 million upgrading its cable system to the state-of-the-art equipment needed to provide the new service.

And cable subscribers in local communities will benefit from faster, easier Internet access, said Ken Nimmer, vice president for consumer marketing at WorldGate Communications.

Senior citizens and school teachers were among those sampling the new service for themselves at the demonstration.

"I'm gonna get me a computer, but I think I might get this, too," said Bob Osterhout, 74, of Collinsville. He held the small infra-red computer key board and clicked to a web site on an electronic screen up for the demonstration.

John Farabee of Maryville said he uses his computer to get on the Internet at home. He said he thinks it might make sense to use the television instead. "Getting on the internet through the computer sometimes is not an easy task," he said. WorldGate offers the Internet to virtually everyone, Nimmer said.

"If they have a TV, they should have cable," he said. "And if they have cable, they should have WorldGate."

The service offers a new way to use the Internet that makes it more natural to the way people want to use information, Nimmer said.

"If you're watching the Discovery Channel, and they say, 'For more information visit our web site at...,' you can just hit the hyperlink button and it goes there," he said.

"This morning I was watching the Today Show, and I know that TWA posts new fares on Tuesday," Nimmer said.

"At a commercial break I clicked on to check the fares, then clicked back," he said. "It makes you use information differently...% it's easier," he said.

The service is designed for people without a computer in their home, either because they can't afford one, or they don't want one," said Barry Babcock, vice chairman at Charter Communications.

Changing landscape

Althoff's move should stabilize league alignments

The Metro East high school landscape has changed with the announcement Belleville Althoff High School will join the Southwestern Conference in school year 2000-2001.

Membership in a conference was a long time coming for the Crusaders, who have been independent since the mid-1980s when the Gateway East Conference disbanded.

Members of that league were Edwardsville, Cahokia, Granite City South, and Granite City South, along with Althoff. When the two Granite City schools merged, the league broke up, with the combined Granite City school later joining the Southwestern Conference.

In its early years, Althoff was a member of the Big 12 Conference, an all-Catholic school league that included Assumption of East St. Louis and Alton Marquette as well as Missouri schools St. Louis University, St. Louis College, and Augustinian Academy.

This area has been as volatile as any in the state when it comes to conference realignments, new conferences forming and conferences disbanding.

You can probably credit discount? — a lot of these changes to the time of the creation of the Illinois football playoffs in the mid-1970s. Many leagues decided to expand to give what most schools perceived as a better chance of qualifying for the football playoffs automatically qualify for the playoffs.

Football is the only sport in the state that a school has to qualify for to participate in postseason.

For the rest of the sports, every team or individual has a chance to participate in the post-season. There is no qualification.

Glenn Schott, Althoff's athletic director and football coach, has led the Crusaders to three state football championships and numerous trips into the playoffs. Yet, he saw his school's football success as a curse when it came to scheduling. Few area schools were willing to take in the Crusaders as a league member, much less play them in football. So, Schott had to take his show on the road, with Althoff traveling often to small towns to play games in Missouri, Kentucky and Indiana.

Yet, while many would perceive Althoff's membership in the South Seven as a way to relieve Althoff's football scheduling problem, Schott says otherwise. He says the school joined the league to benefit the entire athletic program and not just football.

A few years ago, Althoff had a chance to join the South Seven, but held out because of reservations about the travel to such locations as Columbia, Mount Vernon, Marion and Carbondale, round trip distances ranging from 132 to 222 miles.

So, the Crusaders stayed on the independent route until O'Fallon said it was pulling out of the South Seven after the 1998-2000 school year, to join the Southwestern Conference. Fearing it may be squeezed out of games against teams in the Crusaders Southwestern Conference, Schott said it was in the school's best interest to join the South Seven. He said most of the school's coaches agreed with him.

Warriors fall to Belleville East

City opened its season against just such a foe, Belleville East, on Thursday afternoon and suffered the consequences — an 8-1 loss.

The score wasn't close, but the Warriors had some things to be enthusiastic about, according to coach Allen Lobdell.

"It wasn't a great result, but we were encouraged by it," Lobdell said. "I talked to the kids (before the season) about how I thought the kids were in pretty good shape and I think some of the matches proved that. My No. 1 player, Andy Balcer, went through sets that were really strong physically at the end. My No. 1 doubles team (Balcer and Tim Knowlton) and my No. 3 doubles team (Dusty Fox and McMillan and Matt Davis) played some hard sets and all four of those boys looked like they were in great shape at the end."

Balcer was the only Warriors player to post a victory, beating Lancers senior Andy Uhl 4-6, 6-2, 6-4.

Known as a veteran in singles by Dusty Fox.

The match was tough," Knowlton said. "Belleville plays tennis all year round. Dusty Fox is tough. He's No. 12 in the state and I feel like I played him to the best of my ability."

Lobdell was glad to get some work against Belleville East.

"He was in the lineup in singles and doubles, and we are trying to get him some play time," Lobdell said. "He was challenged the day before by some pretty good players and he beat them, so he was in the starting lineup. We were thrilled about that."

The opener gave hope to Lobdell and assistant Ralf Karibian that could be a turnaround season for the Warriors, who have struggled in recent years.

"A lot of the scores in the singles matches didn't look close, but that was their fourth match of the season and it was our first," Lobdell said. "We go a good, hard match before we schedule any matches and by then the kids are just chomping at the bit to try to get in or the coaches will try to beat somebody. Even though we faced a pretty tough opponent, they are not discouraged at all. I know it really helps to stay positive."

Edwardsville holds off Collinsville rally

By Brian Bretsch

Edwardsville survived Collinsville's comeback bid Tuesday afternoon to keep its winning streak intact.

THE TIGERS' 8-5 Southwest Conference victory against the Kahoks at Arthur Fletcher Field in Collinsville raised their record to 6-0 this season. The Tigers stretched their winning streak to 46 consecutive games, dating back to the 1997 season finale.

EHS winning streak up to 46 games

A crowd of more than 150 was on hand to see if the Kahoks could snap the streak of defending IHSA Class AA state champions.

"I said after our first win (this season) that we weren't too concerned about the streak; that it would just put a little pressure on us," said first-year Edwardsville coach Tim Funkhouser. "Mark McGwire, if he had to go up there and hit a home run every at-bat, he would have a lot of pressure, too. We are going to deal with it just from the point of view that we have to come out and compete, think no matter who you are playing, you are going to have to compete on a daily basis."

Edwardsville was 40-0 last season en route to a state championship in Tom Pile's final season at the helm. Many of the same players went on to help the Edwardsville American Legion team capture the national championship.

The Tigers' current streak of 46 victories ranks third all-time in IHSA baseball history. Edwardsville set the state standard of 64 straight victories in 1930-91. Oak Forest is second with 48.

"We're really not thinking about the streak," Tigers pitcher Nick Seibert said. "It's just great to play ball, but we have got our own little streak going. We're 6-0 and doing good in the conference, so we are just working on

Little returns to his roots

Pro outfielder recuperating on EHS bench

By Brian Bretsch
Staff writer

Mark Little still can't say "No" to Edwardsville High assistant baseball coach Mike Waldo.

Little, an outfielder in the St. Louis Cardinals organization, found himself with some time of his hands while recuperating from elbow surgery which will sideline him for the start of the 1999 baseball season. He's spending some of that time on the bench with the Edwardsville High baseball team.

Little had hoped to earn a permanent spot on the Cardinals roster after he spent 19 days with the team's minor league affiliate in September of 1998. Little was in the St. Louis dugout when Mark McGwire concluded his record-setting season with 70 home runs.

But an elbow injury early in spring training forced Little to have surgery. He was to be reevaluated today and hopes to return to action this season.

Not long after the injury sidelined Little, Waldo called with a request. "Mike already has asked me to look at Coach Waldo, he doesn't give you much of a choice," Little said. "He came out and said, 'Hey, are you going to be around?' I said, 'Yes.' He said, 'Well, I think it would be something good for you.'

"I owe it, I owe it to the community. I owe it to these kids."

Mark Little

"I would have done it without him talking to me about it. This is where I got my start. I know there are a lot of people who went out of their way and spent a lot of time away from their families to get me where I am today."

"I owe it, I owe it to the community. I owe it to these kids."

Little said he felt like a high school player when he attended the 1998 Conference game with Collinsville was down the wire.

"When Beau Moody hit that line drive (in the fourth inning to drive in two Edwardsville runs) I almost ran out onto the field," Little said. "I got the emotion. You see a lot of guys playing the game when you talk to them and they say that emotion is gone, that inner drive is gone, that is when you hang 'em up. I still feel it. I feel it out here watching a high school game. Hopefully, I won't lose that for a while."

Edwardsville score three runs in the first inning against Collinsville ace Kenny Lutz. Back-to-back walks to the corners and Seibert helped his own cause with an opposite field three-run home run. The homer was the third of the season for Seibert.

Edwardsville's Matt Bogle made the score 4-0 with a solo home run to left field in the third inning.

The Tigers added three more in the fourth. Ryan Peterson and Travis Riggs drew back-to-back walks. Pinch-runner Joe Havis replaced Riggs and came home to score along with Peterson on Beau Moody's two-run double. Moody scored the Tigers' seventh run on Todd Spitz's sacrifice fly.

Collinsville scored its first runs in the fifth inning. Keith Mumper drew a one-out walk. Dan Munoz's bunt single to right field ended Seibert's no-hit bid and put runners on first and second. Lutz followed with a double to left field, scoring two runs. When the Tiger left fielder got the ball, Lutz went to third. Wayne Astrauskas then homered over the left-field fence to trim the lead to 7-4.

Just as it seemed over in relief of Lutz and retired the Tigers in the sixth, Collinsville then loaded the bases in its half of the sixth, but Ben Holtz struck out Jason Koehn and induced Munoz to roll it off to left to end the threat.

"I never felt like it was over," Collinsville coach Steve McFall said. "Astrauskas hits a home run and all of a sudden we are back in it. We are one batter away, we've got Munoz up and he is a heck of a hitter."

Lutz's homer in the bottom of the seventh answered Edwardsville's run in the top half but it wasn't enough to keep the Kahoks from dropping to 4-3 overall, 1-2 in the SWC.

The senior, who was 10-2 last spring with both of his losses coming against Edwardsville, fell to 2-2 for this season.

Battle of hurlers turns into slugfest

Longball rules in anticipated duel between Lutz, Seibert

By Brian Bretsch
Staff writer

It was supposed to be a classic pitchers duel, a low-scoring battle between Southwestern Conference title contenders Edwardsville and Collinsville.

PREP BASEBALL

It turned into home run derby.

The longball ruled in the showdown between Collinsville and Kenny Lutz, Edwardsville's Nick Seibert as the Tigers posted an 8-5 victory. Both pitchers struggled with control and each served up one home run.

Seibert, who had a 3-0 record and 1.91 ERA, flirted with a no-hitter for four innings. But he ended up walking seven and Collinsville erupted for four runs in the fifth.

Lutz, who was 10-2 last year and entered the game with a 3.89 earned run average, allowed five walks — and four of those baserunners came around to score.

"I know this sounds silly but I thought he was the ball pitcher," Collinsville coach Steve McFall said.

"Unfortunately, I guess he didn't get it exactly where he wanted to. I thought he threw it pretty well. They did get five walks and that is not very characteristic of Kenny. He is a guy who has had great control over his career. I just feel at some point, somebody is going to pay the price again," Lutz said.

Edwardsville coach Tim Funkhouser was hard-pressed to find fault with Seibert's performance.

"I think (Seibert) will settle down over the course of the year as he continues to work on his control," Funkhouser said. "His control has been a problem at other times for him but he is just a quality pitcher. He might get wild for a batter, but comes back and starts hitting his spots better."

Lutz, who was 10-2 last year and entered the game with a 3.89 earned run average, allowed five walks — and four of those baserunners came around to score.

Funkhouser said the Tigers had to score early to be successful.

"With a pitcher like Lutz, we are not going to knock around 15 hits to get our eight runs," Funkhouser said. "It is going to take some time but we even did some squeeze hits and run. It is going to take the type of things to beat a quality pitcher like Lutz."

Seibert had the key hit to ignite the Tigers offense.

"Streak, schmeak," Little said. "Hopefully they are not worried about that. (Sixty-four games) is a ton to win. That is why it is something you shouldn't even think about. Getting healthy and playing well in the post-season — that is an obtainable goal.

The best team does not always win in a baseball game so I think you need to worry about doing some things right. The streak will continue," Little said.

Little said Funkhouser is comparable to former Edwardsville coach Pile.

"I am trying to get the kids ready to play," Little said. "I think Tim brings a lot to the program. He is a good person. He has forgotten most baseball than I'll ever know, and that's good for these kids. If they can listen to him and do the things right the way he teaches, I think he is going to be a good attribute for the program."

Little noticed one thing that seemed much different from his high school days.

"The kids today are the bus being that small," Little said.

"I remember the bus being a little bigger than that. I saw some kids on there that are a lot bigger than me and I'm thinking, 'How is he comfortable on these seats?'

"It is not the same as a charter (flight) but there's something about it, when you get on as a team and ride over and touch the people you get ready to play. It is a special feeling walking off that bus knowing that you are a part of Edwardsville baseball again."

Madison police given squad cars

By Scott Cousins

Staff writer

Madison police are hoping that giving officers their own squad cars will lead to higher officer visibility and reduced maintenance.

Squad cars were formally handed out Tuesday afternoon and a policy on care and operation of police vehicles was approved at the City Council meeting that night.

The city will pay for all maintenance once a month, but officers are responsible for keeping them clean.

"I think it will be a good program," said Police Chief Steve Skoklo. "We might have a little trouble that have to work out."

Skoklo said it was his hope that by reducing the wear and tear on individual cars, they would last longer. In the past few weeks, inspectors have checked for serious properties for occupancy and related violations.

The city also approved a $9,600 bid from Net Plus for computer upgrades and on-line service for the police department.

by a jury in U.S. District Court in East St. Louis in December.

Bradley could have received a maximum of 10 years in prison and a $250,000 fine.

The indictment stemmed from an incident on June 30, 1998, when Bradley, while on patrol, used "unreasonable force" against an individual by firing his .357 Magnum revolver.

According to prosecutors, Bradley fired his weapon at a motorist during a traffic stop. The bullet hit entered the victim's lower back, the rear passenger seat and went into the steel support of the driver's seat, stopping just short of striking the driver.

Evidence presented during the trial also showed that the officer had fired his revolver earlier that day at unarmed male.

THE LAW AND YOU

By RICK REED
Attorney At Law

Let's assume that a man and a woman are divorced and that the mother obtains custody of the two children from the marriage. The father in this hypothetical case is ordered to pay $300.00 per month in child support at the time of the dissolution of marriage. How can the father get his child support obligation in the event he becomes unemployed?

Under Illinois law a judgment of dissolution which provides for child support can normally only be modified by filing a motion for modification and showing a substantial change in circumstances. Generally speaking, a parent paying support can only modify his obligation by filing a motion for modification and showing a substantial change in circumstances. Generally speaking, a parent paying support can only modify his obligation by filing a motion for modification and showing a substantial change in circumstances.

In one recent case, the father was ordered to pay child support, but he became disabled shortly after the divorce. He filed a petition to modify his child support obligations two years after he became disabled, and the trial court terminated his child support retroactively for the period of time he was disabled. During his disability, he had no income.

The Illinois Department of Public Aid appealed the decision on behalf of the mother and argued that the trial court should not have retroactively modified the ex-husband's child support obligation. The issue on appeal was whether or not a trial court may provide for a reduction in child support retroactive to the time the petitioner sought a modification.

The Appellate Court held that the trial court could not terminate the father's child support obligation retroactively. The Court ruled that the father's obligation based on his disability, but the case was returned to the trial court for the purposes of computing the father's arrearage in this case. This case reemphasizes the fact that a supporting parent should return to court immediately if that parent has a substantial reduction in income.

Eighth-grade students at Holy Family Catholic School put on a traditional Seder dinner as part of a paraliturgy service last week at the school. ## A different kind of Easter celebration

Holy Family School students perform traditional Passover meal as part of service

Students at Holy Family Catholic School in Granite City were given a glimpse of another culture as eighth-grade students demonstrated a Seder meal last Thursday during a paraliturgy service.

Seder is held on the first night of Passover, and is traditionally the most important feature of the celebration.

Because Passover and Easter coincided this year, teacher Judy Bucatch said it was a natural thing to do.

"It is a commemoration of Jesus' last supper, but this is a more update version of what a Jewish family of today would do," she said.

The students worked on the program for the past month.

In addition to the Seder meal, a group of third-graders performed a Jewish folk dance.

"We study this during Lent," Bucatch said. "We go back to when Jesus was on this earth and how he commemorated the last days of his life...It helps them to understand this a little better."

The program tries to show how parts of the Seder meal and Passover correspond to the events and meanings of the Last Supper.

The Seder meal starts when the mother, portrayed by Jennifer Miller, lights the candles on the table.

Much of the speaking is done by the father, Andy Mell.

The cup of Elijah sits amid bowls filled with foods represented in the Passover meal. According to tradition, Elijah visits during Seder to wish everybody a year of peace and freedom.

Each of the foods used in a meal is blessed before being eaten. Wine, in this case grape juice, is poured four times during the meal. The wine represents four of God's promises to the Hebrews.

There is also an extra cup of wine on the table. This is the Cup of Elijah. According to legend, Elijah the Prophet visits every Seder to wish everyone a year of peace and freedom.

During the second cup of wine, the youngest male child, portrayed by Jonathan Cavins, traditionally asks the Passover questions: "Why is this night different from all other nights...Why, on this night, do we eat only unleavened bread...why, on this night, do we eat bitter herbs..."

In answer to the questions, the Exodus story is read.

Each of the foods eaten is also symbolic. Matzah, or unleavened bread, is a reminder that the Jews had to leave Egypt quickly. Greens, either parsley or celery, remind them that Passover comes in the spring. Roasted egg reminds them that new life grows in the spring. Maror, the bitter herbs, possibly horseradish, represent the bondage in Egypt. Lamb represents the sacrifice and the blood spread over the doorways of the Hebrews so the angle of death would pass by. Salt water represents the tears of the Jews in slavery. Charoset, a mixture of fruits, wine and nuts, represents the mortar used by the Jews to make bricks.

As part of the Seder, the mother would take a piece of the bread, break it and hide it somewhere. The children would search for it later, and it would be eaten as dessert.

"I hope they'll come to an understanding of all the different ethnic backgrounds in the world today," Bucatch said. "We try to put value on all religions."

Clockwise from above: First-grade student Nesreen Jaber watches as eighth-grade students perform the Seder meal... Third-grade students perform a traditional Jewish folk dance... Melissa Koishor pours one of four cups of wine during the meal... Andy Mell, playing the father, reads from his script.

Nature programs spring up

Columbia Bottoms area is prime spot for hikes

By Cathy Pezold
Staff writer

Take a hike.

That's one of the ideas for learning more about nature offered by the Missouri Department of Conservation. Spring is a great time to go hiking, and MDC naturalists offer many nature hikes at conservation areas like the Columbia Bottoms area in north St. Louis County.

MDC volunteer Karen Hencel recently helped lead a hike through the area, which is just north of Interstate 270 at Riverview Drive. She said hiking is a yearround activity but that those who do so in the spring can see some interesting things.

"There's no reason to stop hiking," she said. "This time of year, if you get a rain, it's great because all the frogs come out. It's also great to see migrating birds, and wildflowers are growing fast now through November."

Hencel, of Webster Groves, has been a volunteer for eight years and said she enjoys the programs offered by MDC. Being a volunteer, she said, gives her a chance to share what she knows and learn more in the process.

"It's discovering the power and frailty of all creation," she said.

"You learn how important every little piece is, and if you just be still, you can really experience what is happening in nature."

Rosemary Witte, 70, an MDC volunteer, said running programs and working with children are her favorite parts.

"I think it's important for the children of today to know about nature and what it has to offer," said Witte, of Olivette.

She has been a volunteer since 1992 and said it is important for people to become educated about conservation by experiencing nature.

"That's the best way to learn about conservation," she said. "We want to conserve nature and save it for the future because if we didn't everything would wind up on the endangered species list. That's what education prevents."

Art Vieluf's goal: Leave 'em laughing

Comedy club owner emphasizes good times

By Becky Garrison
Staff writer

Art Vieluf, a.k.a. "The Purveyor of Laughter," has been packing in big names and big audiences at his club, Comedy etc., since 1995.

Vieluf said about 1,500 to 2,000 customers come through the club each week. Comedy etc., located in the Ramada Inn at Interstate 64 and Illinois 159 in Fairview Heights, seats 280.

Decorated with headshots of comics, the club features round tables scattered throughout the room with a view of the brightly lit stage. A stool and a microphone sit in the spotlight, forming the club's focal point as metallic fans whir quietly overhead.

Autographed T-shirts given to Vieluf by various comics line the walls down the hallway that leads to his office.

After giving a quick tour of his club, Vieluf, a Collinsville native, leans back in the chair of his office, speaking of his early days as a rock 'n' roll impresario, leading up to his success of today.

Vieluf got his start in the entertainment industry when he worked at the Granary nightclub in Edwardsville.

"That's where I got a chance to meet some big name stars," he said. "I met members of groups like Head East, REO Speedwagon and one night The Who played for the club after hours. I also met the original cast of Jesus Christ Super Star."

But over the years Vieluf longed to move on to something else.

"I got tired of the headaches of being in rock 'n' roll," he said, exhaling a circle of smoke. "I wanted something different."

His first venture into the comedy club field came when he ran Chasers in Collinsville.

"The club had only 140 seats, and no budget for big names," he said. "But I liked what was happening and immediately started to look for a new place."

Vieluf said he drove to Fairview Heights every Thursday for two years before stumbling across Corvette's Night Club, housed at the Ramada Inn.

"I knew it was a comedy club waiting to happen," he said.

But obtaining the club at the Ramada would not come easy. His negotiations with the manager of the Ramada were stalled. He increased his business in Collinsville and six months later received a call asking if he was still interested in Corvette's.

Vieluf said his fondest memory was opening night, January 12, 1995.

"We only had 12 days to remodel the place and open," he said. "We had two shifts of contractors and a half an hour before the show I was still using a can of paint and a paintbrush."

Vieluf said the first show was big name comedian Larry

"I met members of groups like Head East, REO Speedwagon and one night The Who played for the club after hours. I also met the original cast of Jesus Christ Superstar. I got tired of the headaches of being in rock 'n' roll. I wanted something different."

Miller, who is known from the movies "Pretty Woman" and "The Nutty Professor" and TV's "Seinfeld."

"It was the first time we had a big enough venue to do that," he said. "We actually were able to pick up the comedian from the airport by limousine."

Vieluf said he enjoys his work.

"It's a fun business," he said. "My job is to get people into the building."

But once the audience is there and the lights go down, Vieluf said it is up to the comedian and his staff to make the show a success.

The secret to Vieluf's success may be his understanding of the needs of his audience.

"The comedy club audience wants to be entertained. They want to leave feeling better than when they got here," he said. "It's not just the comedians that do that...it's the whole staff."

Vieluf said his staff is trained to not get in the way, to work quietly.

Four years later after opening Comedy etc., his worries of getting big name comics are over, as Vieluf gets calls weekly from comedians.

"Comics really like working here because we care about their talent as well as the show," he said.

Comedian Barry Martin, from the "Bob and Tom" radio show, will perform this week at Comedy etc. Show times are 8:30 p.m. Thursday and 8:30 and 10:30 p.m. Friday and Saturday.

'Spenser' author appears at book store

By Barbara M. Cope
Staff writer

Book lovers got a real treat last week as the author of the Spenser books, upon which the "Spenser: For Hire" television series is based, appeared at Piece of Mind Books in Edwardsville.

Mystery writer Robert B. Parker was on hand to answer questions as part of a book tour. He also signed copies of his newest novel.

"When I write a novel, I don't know what I'm going to write until I write it. I write the book I want to read," Parker said.

Parker said it takes him about five months to write a book and compared it to running a small business.

"I write five pages a day. On a normal day, I don't know what I'll the next five pages will be. It takes discipline."

Parker admitted he has his weak points in writing, chief among which is his ability to spell.

"I have a Ph.D. in English which my wife says I conceal magnificently. When I do make a mistake, people write me about it. You can count on people to tell you about it," Parker said.

Parker's next project will be a book about a female detective named Sonny Randall. Actress Helen Hunt approached him for a "female sort of Spenser." The book is titled "Family Honor" and will be made into a movie starring Hunt next year.

"Hush Money" is the 26th book in the Spenser series. It is set in Boston, the author's hometown and site of all his books. Parker is the author of "Valediction," "Crimson Joy," and "Walking Shadows."

Andrea Romick-Allen, owner of Piece of Mind, said people often come back to her store for more of the Spenser novels once they have read their first one. Parker, who once worked as a newspaper food critic, is known for his detailed descriptions of food and his trademark wit and wisecracking, she said.

"Hush Money" is available for $22.95 at Piece of Mind Books, 1530 Troy Road.

Sisters release their 1st CD

Music of Bear Creek Girls reflects country roots

By Ronnie Roy
Staff writer

For sisters Susan Barkley and Rachel Uthlaut, music has always been part of their lives. Their lives have recently taken a new turn with the release of their debut CD, "Not Just Any Women."

The duo, who call themselves Bear Creek Girls, plan a CD release party Saturday at The Boondocker Inn in New Haven, near Hermann.

Barkley is a homemaker living in New Haven and Uthlaut works as a meteorologist for the National Weather Service in Lincoln, Ill. Their other sister, Lynda Salings of St. Peters, handles publicity.

The group's name reflects their roots.

"Bear Creek runs below the house on our farm," Barkley said. "In country music, many artists use their last names. Since I'm married, we didn't have the same last name, so we picked something meaningful to us. We spent a lot of time at that creek growing up."

The sisters grew up surrounded by music, much of it played by their mother on the piano. "Mom would play every kind of music. We know every tune there is," Barkley said. "Music is a really big part of our lives."

"This has been dad's dream all our lives. He's always believed in us," Salings said. Their parents, Ronald and Patricia Uthlaut, serve as executive producers on their CD.

The girls began performing at a young age, in school plays and musicals and for the tourists visiting Hermann.

"There's a lot of theater in Hermann for the tourists," Salings said. "Our Grandma started us out. During the tours of historic homes, we would dress up and sing on the balconies."

Susan and Rachel began writing songs in 1996, and ended up at River's Edge Studios in Fredricksburg a year later, hoping to record a demo. They hooked up with Steve Simon, who helped arrange their music and produced the disc with Scott Nienhaus and the sisters.

"We were planning to do three songs, but got so much encouragement from our producers and the band that we kept going. We ended up with 11 songs, 10 we wrote ourselves," Barkley said. The sisters contributed five songs each, with an eleventh track supplied by Nienhaus.

The Bear Creek Girls are backed by Simon and Nienhaus on guitar, Tim Politte on drums, Terry Jones Rogers in rhythm guitar, Hunter Sprenger on bass guitar and Lanny Engler on the pedal steel. Jeff Schmidt offered technical support. Sister Salings provided some background vocals, along with a cousin.

"It's a well-rounded set of music," Salings said. "Traditional, new country, country-rock, ballads, there's a bluesy song. It's generally new country, like Marshall Tucker or The Eagles."

The CD was finished in

Susan Barkley and Rachel Uthlaut, the Bear Creek Girls, recently released their debut CD, "Not Just Any Women."

connections of their various band members, and their music, to get someone's attention.

"Our ultimate goal is to get signed by a record company," Barkley said. "If not, we'll try to sell our songs. We love to sing, that's the No. 1 thing, but anything in the music business would be great."

"Not Just Any Women" is available at Blockbuster Music in the St. Louis area or can be ordered from the group's webpage at www.bearcreekgirls.com.

Trekkers plan walk Saturday

10K fun walk planned at Scott Air Base

By Larry Ingram
Staff writer

It's the trek time of the year.

On Saturday, trekkers will make tracks around Scott Air Force Base with a 10K (6.2 miles) fun walk.

Scott Air Force Base Health and Wellness Center and the Illinois Trekkers Volksport Club are hosting the fun walk at the base.

Participants will see many sights of the SAFB facility and operations.

Organizers of the event are encouraging families to come out and participate in this fun walk.

The walk is being held on flat ground and paved walkways. It is rated at 1 (easy) degree of difficulty.

A shorter walk distance will be available for those unable to complete the 10K trail.

Health walk organizers say people in wheel chairs, and those pushing wagons and strollers should have no difficulty with the walk.

The health walk will start at the Gateway Recreation Center at West Martin Street on the base.

Trekkers can start their walks anytime from 8 a.m. to 11 a.m. Walkers must be finished by 2 p.m.

For more information, call Leonard at 632-4164.

Spirits were the wildest of them all
ABA team had great players, little chemistry

Trivia

Kevin Carbery
By Kevin Carbery
Staff writer

The wildest of them all.
That's what the Spirits of St. Louis basketball team was called in the Terry Pluto book "Loose Balls," which came out several years ago. It's a great read about the old American Basketball Association. By the way, a pox on whoever it was that I lent my copy to and has never returned it.

Pluto was dead on the money with his comment on the Spirits, a team loaded with talent, but with absolutely no chemistry. It was said of the Spirits that they would have won the ABA title if the rules would have allowed them to have five basketballs on the court at a time, because these guys were nothing but bunglings.

What a team it was! You had Marvin Barnes, who was considered to be one of the best players in all of the hoops world for a few years in the mid-1970s.

Other notable Spirits included Moses Malone, Maurice Lucas, Caldwell Jones, Fly Williams, Gus Gerard, Steve Jones, Freddie Lewis, M.L. Carr and Joe Caldwell.

In addition to having a great team roster, the Spirits had Rudy Martzke, now the sports media writer for USA Today, as their director of operation.

The play-by-play announcer for them was Bob Costas, the future NBC sports broadcasting star.

I went to many Spirits games during their brief time in St. Louis because Grandpa Carbery was a beer truck driver for Falstaff, one of the major sponsors.

Since nobody else seemed to

Spirits were one wild team

want the free tickets the company always had on hand, my grandpa would pass them along to me.

I would go to the games with a bunch of my friends and, since 2,000 was a big crowd for the Spirits, we would get to sit practically anywhere we wanted in the Arena. I saw hoops greats such as Dr. J., George McGinnis, Dan Issel and Artis Gilmore come to town and pound the locals. It was still a blast.

For this week's quiz, the topic is the Spirits of St. Louis. 1. How many seasons did the Spirits last?

2. Who was the only player ever to win a major award for his play with the Spirits?

3. What did Harry Weltman, Ozzie Silna, Daniel Silna and Donald Schupak have to do with the team?

4. Who was the first head coach of the Spirits?

5. Who was the last ex-Spirit to retire from the NBA?

6. What was Marvin Barnes' nickname?

7. After the Spirits, Maurice Lucas went on to help lead which team to the NBA championship in 1977?

8. What were the team's cheerleaders nicknamed?

9. Marvin Barnes played college hoops for which school?

10. What was the franchise called before it moved to St. Louis?

ANSWERS: 1. Two — 1974-75 and 1975-76. 2. Barnes, who was named the ABA Rookie of the Year for the 1974-75 season. 3. They were the team owners and ended up getting a sweet deal from the NBA when the ABA folded and four of its teams went into the NBA. 4. Bob MacKinnon. 5. Moses Malone, who didn't call it quits until 1985. 6. "Movin'" 7. The Portland Trail Blazers. 8. The Spires. 9. Providence. 10. The Carolina Cougars.

I will host the following upcoming trivia events: Lafayette Park United Methodist Church Trivia on Saturday, April 24, call 771-9214; Kiwanis Club Trivia at Kirkwood Community Center on Saturday, May 1, call 414-0916; Crestwood Demolay Trivia at Webster Groves Masonic Temple on Saturday, May 15, call 631-8476.

Kevin Carbery can be heard as a regular on "The Entertainment and Trivia Show" at 10 p.m. Sundays on KMOX Radio (1120 AM).

Brothers will speak at mall Saturday

Health fair planned

at St. Clair Square

By Becky Garrison
Staff writer

Dr. Joyce Brothers will be the featured speaker at a health fair this weekend at St.

Clair Square.

The famed psychologist,

author, radio and television commentator will speak on

"Unlocking Hidden Powers" in Center Court at 2 p.m.

Saturday.

Her one-hour presentation will include a question-and-answer period if time permits, fair sponsors said.

The fair will provide the opportunity to get a blood pressure and/or cholesterol

check, pick up child safety information and talk to doctors, nurses, pharmacists, nutritionists or other health care professionals free of charge.

Diana Padgett, director of marketing at St. Clair Square, said this year's fair will include representatives, exhibits and information from various agencies and individuals who provide services related in one way or another to health care or healthy living.

This includes hospitals,

family practitioners,

audiologists, podiatrists, chiropractors, nurses, dentists,

medical supply companies,

hospices and social service organizations.

"With all the community organizations participating, we expect this to be a very successful event," Padgett said.

Padgett added that St. Clair

Square would like to make the HealthFair an annual event.

The fair is sponsored by St.

Clair Square, St. Elizabeth's

Hospital and West Pointe Bank and Trust Company and will be held Saturday, April 10,

Horoscope

THURSDAY, APRIL 8

Don't allow your energy to be drained by too many loose ends, kept secrets or uncompleted tasks. You have the power to put your plan into action, and the Capricorn moon helps you formulate a cohesive plan. Mercury's direct position in heartfelt Pisces helps us talk about what's been brewing under the surface. Voice your fears, no matter how ludicrous they may seem.

TODAY'S BIRTHDAY (April 8). You align yourself with winning people and reap rewards from their success. There's luck with tests and social acceptance of outrageous ideas. Writing is highlighted this summer. Plenty of love comes your way because you're true to a vision. New career prospects in June should be grasped without hesitation. You follow your instincts toward gold; resisting only hurts your progress.

ARIES (March 21-April 19). Laugh off a setback. A colleague becomes more interesting all the time, but move slowly. Amazing clarity descends on you this afternoon; you make decisions when reflecting upon a relationship in a lover's absence.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20). What you considered a dangerous career move now looks like the next logical step — track the progress of others who have gone this route. Expansion is the key to a windfall. Love intensifies with time spent apart.

GEMINI (May 21-June 21). Political moves at work favor you. A partner is secretive about his or her needs, but you are more perceptive than ever. Money comes when family relationships are fine-tuned. Get creative in your decision-making process.

CANCER (June 22-July 22). You are the messenger of great news and therefore gain some residual credit, whether you deserve it or not. A wise loved one encourages you to enter a competition; take heed. Your questions will be answered honestly tonight.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22). Assignments are completed faster when subordinates are left to their own devices. Avoid bragging about romantic conquests, as this gets back to all the wrong people. Poor communication on the job is a source of tension.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22). Seize an opportunity to market artistic works through the help of a club. Money comes in spurts; be patient and thrifty.

'The King and I' falls flat

Movie scores higher with children than grownups

By Brian Kaller
Staff writer

Warner Bros. new animated feature, "The King and I," is a surprisingly flat and lackluster addition to the pantheon of children's features. This is not really a movie version of the Rodgers and Hammerstein musical, and little remains of that classic but the songs. The rest is a kid's adventure involving sea monsters, evil wizards, kickboxing matches and hot-air balloon rescues.

MOVIE REVIEW
owed

Anna (voice of Miranda Richardson) and her young son on a ship to Siam, hired to provide a Western education for the king's children. Once there, she becomes the unwitting pawn of Kralahome (Ian Richardson), prime minister and evil sorcerer who covets the throne.

Every Disney-style villain has a squat, bumbling sidekick for comedy relief, and Kralahome has Master Little (Darrin Hammond), first seen flossing his gigantic buck teeth. Guess what happens to one of his teeth in each scene.

My complaint is not that the story bears only the most tenuous relation to its historical source — it is assumed that a kid's feature must bowdlerize the classic story of Anna and the King of Siam and expunge all mention of dictatorships and multiple wives. It is also to be expected that any heroine from the Disney school must have the obligatory assortment of cute and highly marketable animal companions, in this case, a baby white elephant Tusker, a mischievous monkey Moonshee and the black panther Rama.

No, my complaint is that the movie is by turns dull and awkward, failing to keep the attention of many children, much less grownups. The musical numbers are inserted haphazardly into the adventure story with goofy results. In the first number, when a giant sea serpent is attacking Anna's ship, Anna breaks into "Whistle a Happy Tune," cavorting gaily around the deck of the foundering ship unmindful of a giant serpent snapping at her torso. Similarly, the King performs "It's a Puzzlement" dancing with eyes closed, blissfully ignorant of giant computer-animated statues encircling him.

Disney long ago raised the bar on both animation and storytelling with magnificent works like "The Lion King" and "Beauty and the Beast," and while this movie religiously follows their formula, its primitive art and muddled story would have trouble passing muster on Saturday-morning cartoons, much less the silver screen.

'Deep End of the Ocean': thought-provoking drama

By Gina Thornburg
Staff writer

A moment lasts a lifetime for Beth Cappadora and her family in Ulu Grosbard's dramatic film "The Deep End of the Ocean," based on Jacquelyn Mitchard's book of the same name.

When Beth (Michelle Pfeiffer) leaves her two sons to wait in a Chicago hotel lobby as she checks in for her class reunion, she never expects to return to find only one of them where she told them to wait. The youngest of the two, three-year-old Ben, left his brother Vincent's side. Police detectives, led by Det.

Candy Bliss (Whoopi Goldberg), spend hours searching the area, but Ben is nowhere to be found.

Nine years later, Beth finds hope when 12-year-old Sam offers to cut the family's lawn, Beth sees a resemblance between Sam and a digitally-enhanced police photo that shows what Ben would look like at the present time.

After fingerprints from Ben and Sam are found to be a match, Sam is taken from his adopted father George's care and returned to the Cappadoras. George (John Kaplos), however, is not charged with kidnapping because, as he explains, his deceased wife had custody of Sam before they were wed.

It turns out the woman who kidnapped Ben was a former classmate of Beth's who had lost a child during childbirth.

After spending time with the Cappadoras and sneaking back to George's house, Sam begins to remember his childhood after smelling the inside of a cedar chest.

Each character deals with the emotional roller coaster in his own way — Vincent becomes a troubled teen, Beth tries to live day-by-day, Pat tries to hold his family together and Sam just tries to figure out what is best for himself.

Overall, the story is strong and something to which all parents can relate. Pfeiffer's dramatic initial response to the loss of her child is very captivating and engrossing.

The plot thickens in each scene of the film, allowing for the audience to continuously try to figure out what would happen next. And many times what I thought would happen would not even be close — as is the case when Vincent tells Sam about the day he was kidnapped and how Sam responds to the story he hears.
